board on building projects and renovations to the baseball field. He also gave the board a written summary of changes to the 2007 elections.

The key change in policy is requiring a school district to join with a city, municipality or county in holding elections at one polling place. If the school goes with the city, elections will remain in May; with the county, voting will take place in November.

Keith Lindsey questioned how the county option would affect voters since the Troup school district is in both Smith and Cherokee counties. Brown and Beaty said if the school goes with the county and November elections, then residents of Cherokee County would have to vote in more than one location to cast a vote in the school elections.

Beaty said aligning with the city and keeping the elections in May seemed the best course in light of the dilemma presented because of the dual county situation, as well as the necessity of amending and extending board terms until November.

The deadline for approving an election plan is Feb. 26. Jill Spearman gave a brief fi-ancial report, and Supt. Beaty also gave two short reports concerning upgrading the softball field and the addition of a school resource officer. Both of these matters are being looked at by school attorneys before proceeding further.

The board also approved, if necessary, a waiver to the maximum class size. Dr. Preast requested the waiver based on a first-grade class that currently is one student over the approved ratio of 22 students to one teacher.

Prior to executive session, the board also approved consent items including minutes, approval of expenditures, budget amendments and approval of additional classroom/aide substitutes.

Also up for approval on the consent agenda (items to be considered at one time) were several updates for local board policy; trustee Keith Lindsey asked that these items be removed from the consent agenda and considered separately.

At question was the proposed wording of the updated policies. Supt. Beaty suggested the items be tabled, and he would present the board with more specific information (trustees had previously been given a summary of policy changes). A motion by Lindsey to table the items for further review was approved.

Of his contract extension, Supt. Beaty said, "They're very good to me and my family." "I work for the best board in East Texas, and I love my job."

Acne: OTC Drugs Often Effective

Acne is a common condition of the skin that is characterized by pimples and clogged pores. This condition can affect people at any age. Women may experience acne as a result of hormonal changes. When the hair follicles of the skin are blocked by oil and dead skin cells, acne may result. Sebaceous glands are connected to hair follicles and function to secrete an oily substance known as sebum. When the body produces an excessive amount of sebum along with dead skin cells, the hair follicle may become clogged, resulting in a whitehead or a blackhead. An increase in sebum production may be due to hormones, bacteria, or genetics.

Acne may be treated by using over-the-counter (OTC) products or prescription drugs. Typically, OTCs contain benzoyl peroxide, salicylic acid, or resorcinol. If over-the-counter products do not sufficiently clear up acne, prescription medications may be used. Topical treatments available by prescription include adapalene (Differin) and tretinoin (RetinA). Oral antibiotics may be prescribed for moderate to severe acne to help reduce bacteria and inflammation. Isotretinoin (Accu-tane) may be necessary in case of deep cystic acne that does not resolve with other treatments. Accutane should not be taken by women who are pregnant or may become pregnant during treatment.
